he one-man show "House of Lucky," returned to La Val's Subterranean Theatre last weekend to knock its audience's socks off with solo performer, Frank Wortham.

Impact Theatre put on the show, which was performed Friday and Saturday in Berkeley.

"It's essentially a love song to San Francisco," said Wortham, the writer, performer and sound designer for the play. "I wanted to give back to the community, and that's what this (play) is."

"House of Lucky" is the story of 20-something poet Harper Jones, who resides for most of his life in San Francisco. Jones leads afes lead
